PRESS RELEASE

The Wilderman Group Selected as Management Company for New Sustainable Golf Course

Ceremony Signals Starts of Construction Phase of Development

(Johns Island, SC – October 2008) — Property owners, architects, management, and invited guests gathered last week at Carolina Colours planned community in New Bern, Craven County, NC to officially begin construction of the sustainable, 18-hole, par-72 golf course designed by famed architect Bill Love and construction by the builder of some of North Carolina's highest ranked course, Shapemasters.

Community developer, Kenneth Kirkman said the course will be unique to eastern North Carolina with its responsible commitment to preserving the intimate relationship between the course, land, waterways and wildlife habitats. "We expect the Carolina Colours Golf Club to have one of the top golf courses in the mid-Atlantic area," said Kirkman. "Bill Love's reputation as an outstanding golf course designer and environmental steward is well deserved.

According to John Wilderman, President of the Johns Island, SC-based The Wilderman Group, the uniquely environmental course is scheduled for completion in fall 2009 and will feature a diverse level of playability, with more than 7,100 yards from back tees and 5,000 yards from the front tees. Wilderman is an award-winning veteran of the hospitality industry having served in a strong range of management positions throughout his career. His background includes hotel and resort general manager, club manager, resort managing director, regional VP of operations, VP of development, and acquisitions consultant.

Wilderman has named Ken Gerhardt of The Wilderman Group to serve as general manager for both golf and hospitality segments on the 1,700-acre property located in the vibrant and historic coastal town of New Bern, NC. Gerhardt has previously served as general manager at Bald Head Island and Seabrook Plantation, both managed by The Wilderman Group.

Widely recognized in the meetings and hospitality industry as innovators with a solid track record, The Wilderman Group applies this background to the development of effective management strategies for a diverse range of properties, including hotels, resorts, conference centers, golf clubs, private residential communities and marinas, as well as a host of hospitality amenities and services. The Wilderman Group currently provides hospitality operations and management at Bald Head Island, NC located on a pristine barrier island off coastal North Carolina and renown for its secluded and peaceful lifestyle.
